The 4 Phases of Problem Gambling

Phase 1: The Winning Phase. Most problem gamblers experience a “big win” in the beginning, which results in more frequent gambling and increased wagers. This tends to inflate the gambler’s self-esteem and they begin to fantasize about future winnings. Losses are chalked up to “bad luck.” (Not all gamblers experience phase 1.)

Phase 2: The Losing Phase. Losses eventually outweigh the winnings, and the gambler starts to “chase losses,” or try to catch back the money lost. During this phase the gambler always thinks about gambling, and can no longer control it. Relationships with family, friends and employers begin to deteriorate.

Phase 3: The Desperation Phase. At this point, the gambler is considered a compulsive gambler. They can no longer pay debts and they look for legal and illegal bailouts. They then use this new money to try to recover money lost. The gambler’s belief is that a winning streak is right around the corner. Depression, irritability and thoughts of suicide are usually present.

Phase 4: The Hopeless Phase. Serious consequences begin to occur, such as arrests, alcohol or substance abuse problems, divorce or failing out of school. They realize that catching back their losses is not possible, but they no longer care. Studies show that 20% of gamblers, during this phase, attempt suicide.

Responsibility Risks

Recreational Gambling

Gambling for older adults is often a social activity that doesn’t cause problems. There are ways to make sure that recreational gambling does not lead to problems.

- Make sure the benefit of gambling for you is to have fun, and not for financial gain.
- Always gamble with others. Never gamble alone.
- Set limits on how much you plan to spend gambling. Leave the credit/bank cards behind.
- Never gamble to cope with loss or loneliness.
- Before you gamble, always be prepared for the reality of losing.
